

Whole new world

Life is easy when you think about it. But not in this case. Starting a new school, I'm terrified! I don't know anyone. Oh yeah, let me introduce myself, I'm Eloise, nice to meet you. Right now I'm just walking through a hall way full of people I don't know! There, number 17, my locker. I guess bricklin high School isn't so bad after all. I just need some friends, that's all. I turn around a see a beautiful girl! I know I have to be friends with her.

When I got there I knew this was a bad idea; she was chewing gum with her hair down wearing sunglasses (and it wasn't even summer).

"What do you want?" she called out while a huge crowd formed around us. I just simply said "Sorry to bother you," and went. There I was on the first day of had school I humiliated myself in front of everyone. I knew this day couldn't get worse. But then it did.

I met a guy! A guy! That's the best thing! This day is turning better already. CRASH! BANG! BOOM! The sound was like World War 3. I was alone. Everyone is gone apart from two people, the cool girl and the boy I met. I asked the cool girl her name and she replied with "Mya, you?" I then told her that I was called Eloise. Seth, the boy I met, lead us to the principal's office, to see if anyone or anything was there. When we got there I looked in the drawers and found an unusual looking key. The temptation of pulling the key out got bigger. What was so fascinating about that key? Knowing it was wrong I pulled it out. The key had an engraved pattern which had the same pattern as the door handle I was looking at. I slowly put the rusty key in the weird shape key-hole an opened the door.

There I was; standing by my future! BOOM! BANG! CRASH! We knew we had to go now or never. I jumped first, but went without knowing what was down there.3, 2, 1...